

I support the offering of a la carte cable channels. I don't like having to pay for channels that I never watch. However, if this rule is passed, I'm sure that the cable companies will thwart it by charging so much for the popular channels, like CNN, that it will not make financial sense for the average customer to go with an a la carte selection.